MACHINE GUN IS PLACED AT MINE

CENTRAL COAL AND IRON COMPANY FORTIFIES ITS PROPERTY AT CENTRAL CITY.

ORGANIZATION IS SPLIT

Former Union Officials Now Organizing The Southern Association of Miners.

Greenville, Ky., Aug. 28.—An acute phase of the controversy between the mine operators and mine workers was precipitated Monday when it was learned that the Central Coal and Iron company, of Central City, had fortified its property with a machine gun.

Just recently the miners of the district had agreed to accept the old scale for labor with the exception of two or three questions relating to the working conditions which had been agreed to be left to arbitration by committees representing the operators and United Mine Workers of America.

It is said that the Central City Coal and Iron company, of Central City, was one of the first in District 23, to accept the old scale without conditions. The company's mine continued to run after all the others had been closed by reason of the miners walking out. About four weeks ago the tipple of the company was burned. S. C. Gish, vice president of the Central Coal and Iron company, stated at the time that he would decline to rebuild unless the miners would agree to accept a ten per cent straight reduction in wages.

New Proposition.

A meeting of the miners of the Central City local was called and the proposition put up to them. A majority of those present and voting voted to accept the coal company's proposition and agreed to the discount. The vote at the meeting is said to have stood twenty-nine voting in favor of the proposition and twenty-one voting against it. Upon the result of the vote being known the work of rebuilding the tipple was begun. Another meeting was held and the union miners by a vote of 72 to 29 turned down the proposition.

After work on the company's tipple was begun, in view of the later agreement by some of the miners to accept a ten per cent straight reduction, union officials say that they discouraged the men in every way possible from working for the company. As a result, they say, out of 250 men usually employed by the company only between fifty and sixty returned to work.

Machine Gun Mounted.

Monday afternoon employees of the coal company were seen engaged in placing in position between the entrance of the mine shaft and the Illinois Central railroad a machine gun of the Colt's Gatlin gun type, 45 caliber. The gun was placed on a heap of slag and a fortification rampart consisting of twelve-inch posts built around it. The area enclosed occupies a space of approximately ten square feet.

The officials of the miners organization have expressed themselves as doubtful as to the final outcome of the action of the company in placing a rapid fire machine gun in a peaceful community. Especially is this calculated to cause trouble, they say, as there has been no threats against property or life on the part of the miners.

Mr. Gish, of the company, said that he was under no apprehension of trouble from the miners. His purpose, he said, in placing the gun on the premises and in its present position was solely for the protection of his property. It was stated Monday that the company had a second gun of a similar type in reserve.

To Form New Union.

A meeting was called for Monday night at Central City by C. W. Wells, mayor of the city; J. W. Wright, former state senator, and W. E. Hicks, former secretary and treasurer of the United Mine Workers of America, of District 23 for the purpose of organizing an entirely new miners organization. The new organization will be called the Southern Association of Miners. The movement is taken in opposition of the organization of the United Mine Workers of America.

If the organization is perfected, it is claimed that the Central Coal and Iron company has promised it a better contract than is enjoyed by any other organization of mine workers in the district.

72 ALLY WARSHIPS LOST TO AUGUST 1, SAYS BERLIN

Berlin, via London, August 27.—The German Admiral has issued a statement asserting the losses of the British and French navies, in line-of-battle ships and cruisers, to August 1, comprised seventy-two vessels, with a displacement of 496,050 tons. The German losses were twenty-five warships with a total of 62,667 tons.

H. COMPANY IS OFF FOR MEXICAN BORDER

THIRD AND SECOND REGIMENTS SPEEDING TOWARD THE RIO GRANDE.

Fort Thomas, Ky., Aug. 30.—The Third Kentucky Regiment is speeding toward the Rio Grande. The regiment entrained at a late hour tonight and left Newport for the Mexican border. The route lies thru Louisville, where the troops are due shortly after midnight.

The packing and entraining of the Third was accomplished more smoothly than in the case of the Second and the detached units, because of the length of time given them to prepare. The First, which will leave at 6 o'clock tomorrow night, was virtually ready to go tonight, and will be able to complete its preparations in a short time tomorrow.

March to Newport.

The Third tonight marched from Fort Thomas to Newport, a distance of approximately five miles, with the farewell cheers of soldiers and civilians ringing in their ears.

All day the Third was busy packing property and hauling it to the box cars in trucks. Late in the afternoon they found an hour for drilling, sustaining their reputation as one of the most conscientious units on the ground, so far as training is concerned. Shortly after the drill the men, in heavy marching order, filed out the gates of the reservation and began their long trip to the border.

Millionaire Recluse Says He Paid Large Sum.

Chicago, Aug. 29.—One instance of the alleged fleeing of Edward W. Morrison, recluse millionaire, out of hundreds of thousands of dollars, was revealed by Morrison himself on the witness stand before Federal Judge Landis today.

Morrison admitted he had paid nearly $94,000 to a man named Douglas, whose first name he did not know, to go to Europe and search for $25,000 worth of bonds supposedly stolen from Morrison.

Morrison said John Sommers, a jeweler and said to have been the aged millionaire's companion on entertainment trips, introduced him to Douglas.

ROW THREATENING WOMEN'S ARMY CAMP IS SETTLED

Lake Geneva, Wis., August 27.—A row that threatened to bring disunion in the women's National Service School, cherished enterprise of Chicago society women, was settled amicably today. Ensign Martin, one of the navy officers in charge of the camp, said tonight:

"The trouble is all over now, and I don't want to say anything about it."

From other sources it was learned that Brig. Gen. Mrs. George A. McKinnock was accused of disobedience to her superior, Dr. Norman R. Sullivan, and that she had been asked to apologize to Maj. Gen. Mrs. Frederick D. Countiss, commander of the camp.

LARGE SUM FOR CATHOLIC CAUSE

HARTFORD DEMOCRAT ASKS BEN JOHNSON ABOUT $1,585,881 APPROPRIATIONS.

HERALD WON'T PUBLISH MEN TO QUIT MONDAY

Refuses to Allow Pointed Question To Be Asked Through Its Columns.

The following article has been handed us by Mr. James H. Williams, a prominent Democrat and former Mayor of Hartford, with the request that we publish it in The Republican. The article was originally intended for publication in the Hartford Herald but Mr. Williams states that the editors of that paper have refused to publish it for fear of injuring the chances for re-election of Congressman Ben Johnson. The signer of the communication vouches for the authenticity of the figures given below, which were compiled by the Secretary of the Treasury:

"Hartford, Ky., Aug. 23, 1916. To the Editor of The Hartford Herald:

I have seen from time to time in your columns news items from Washington, D. C., to the effect that Hon. Ben Johnson, from the Fourth Kentucky District, had saved the Government and tax-payers of the nation large sums of money. Being one of the small tax-payers, I am always glad to hear of such savings.

I have information from the Treasury Department to the effect that the disbursements on account of five Roman Catholic (I judge from their names) institutions in the District of Columbia have been, during a period from 1866 to 1914, $1,585,881.63 as follows:

Providence Hospital, 1866-1914	$1,327,699.50
House of Good Shepherd, 1890-1898	36,572.80
St. Ann's Infant Asylum, 1883-1914	172,875.53
St. Rose Industrial School, 1887-1896	41,952.80
St. Joseph's Orphan Asylum, 1892-1896	6,781.00
I want him to tell the tax-payers of the United States, but especially those of the Fourth District, through your columns, what he has done to prevent these appropriations from year to year since he has been in Congress, and what he has done, or what he will do, toward having this large sum returned to the Treasury.

Yours sincerely,
JAMES H. WILLIAMS.

NATION PREPARES FOR BIG STRIKE

RAILROADS REFUSE PERISHABLE FREIGHT—PASSENGERS WARNED OF DELAYS.

WILL WALK OUT UNLESS AGREEMENT REACHED IN MEANTIME—STILL HOPEFUL.

Chicago, Aug. 30.—Elaborate arrangements are being made in all parts of the country to prepare for the strike of 400,000 railroad employees, who are to quit work Monday, unless some means are found to settle the trouble between the railroads and their employers.

Railroads of the nation rushed preparations today to enforce the embargo on perishable freight. Shipments of livestock and perishables were refused by some roads today; others issued warnings that perishable freight, which cannot reach its destination by Saturday, September 2, will not be accepted.

Orders were flashed to ticket agents to inform passengers that unless they reach their destinations by Sunday to "perplexing delays."

Big manufacturers and business houses swamped telegraph companies with messages urging that their shipments be rushed at once. Many of them authorized sending their orders by express. Some large commercial houses already have recalled their traveling representatives.

Speed Up Plans.

Operating officials of many of the big railway systems speeded up plans to meet any emergency and private detective agencies engaged to employ additional help, were urged to more activity. Physical examinations of thousands of former railroad men, who, officials said, are willing to return to the coach and cab was hastened.

Shopmen and engine hostlers, who know something about running locomotives, were coached for a more important duty expected of them. Guarantees of bonuses and protection attracted many men who have had experience in firing boilers and operating stationary engines.

In many of the larger cities ways and means are being discussed to prevent suffering due to lack of food and supplies, while some of the chief railroads are trying to make arrangements to run trains despite the action of the members of the four brotherhoods.

Associated Press dispatches from all parts of the country indicated that within forty-eight hours, unless a delay in the strike is ordered, embargo orders will be effective on practically every railroad in the country.

What this means to traffic and revenues is said by railroad men to be shown by the statement of an official of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe railroad, who said the embargo would reduce the traffic of the road one-third.

AGED WOMAN DIES OF GRIEF 5 DAYS AFTER MATE'S DEATH

Cheyenne, Wyo., Aug. 28.—Grief over the death of her husband, Chas. Frederick, eighty-three, which occurred five days previous, is the cause given for the demise of Mrs. Augusta Frederick, seventy-three, who died at St. John's hospital. The Fredericks had been married fifty years, and when Mr. Frederick died his wife's grief was so intense that she collapsed, and her removal to the hospital was necessary.

"I pass on to join him, and I am glad," were Mrs. Frederick's last words.

JOHN ALLEN WILSON WINS FIRST PRIZE

HOG CONTEST IS A GREAT SUCCESS—HUNDREDS VIEW FINE ANIMALS.

The Ohio County Boys' Hog Contest was held at the court house square here yesterday morning and late yesterday afternoon the judge of the contest, County Agent J. M. Ligon, of Caldwell county, gave out the decision in favor of John Allen Wilson, son of Judge John B. Wilson, of Hartford. Young Wilson had taken great pains with his fine Duroc and practically all who looked the hogs over approved of the decision. He gets a trip to the Kentucky State Fair as a reward.

The second prize, $7.50 in cash, went to J. S. Wilson, who lives at Rosine. Other prize winners follow:

J. T. Lindley, $6.00; Rex Baird, $5.00; Clark Maddox, $4.00; Yewell Baugh, $4.00; George Young, $3.00; Hubert Baldwin, $2.50; Griffith Mitchell, $2.00; W. R. Carson, Jr., $1.50; Haskell Bennett, $1.00; Noble Leisure, $1.00; Hanawatt Bennett, $1.00; Hubert Bennett, $1.50; Clay A. Baird, $1.50; Gilbert Baird, $1.50.

The cash prizes were given by business men in Beaver Dam, Rockport, Centertown, Matanzas and Hartford.

County Agent Browder was just about the busiest man in Hartford yesterday arranging details connected with the contest. Much credit is due him for the interest he has created in these contests. Several hundred people viewed the hogs yesterday, they coming from all parts of the county.

RAILROADERS FACE LOSS OF PENSIONS IN STRIKE

Baltimore, Aug. 30.—Many employees of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, affiliated with the four unions which are on the point of striking, are not anxious to go out because a loss of their positions, according to an official of the company, will mean the loss of the savings of a life-time invested in the insurance department of the company.

This also applies to the employees of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company. The insurance department of the Baltimore & Ohio Company is older than that of the Pennsylvania Company, however, and its savings fund is larger.

Another phase of the case appeals to the older men in the service of both companies. There are hundreds of them who are approaching the age of 70 years, when they will be retired on pensions if they remain in the service. If they strike they face the loss of this pension.

HUGHES TO MAKE SPEECH AT PARIS

Paris, Ky., Aug. 29.—The managers of the Republican campaign in Bourbon county have been notified by the chairman of the Republican State Campaign Committee that former Justice Charles E. Hughes, Republican candidate for President, will speak in Paris on the evening of Tuesday, September 5, at the L. & N. passenger station. The Hughes special will stop for only ten minutes and the Republican candidate will speak from the rear of his private car.

RUMANIAN KING TO LEAD ARMY

NEW BELLIGERENT ENTERS CONTEST WITH VIM AND MEN FIGHTING FURIOUSLY.

ALL EYES ON GREECE

Occupation of Kavala Has Intensified Feelings of Greeks Who Will Follow Premier.

London, Aug. 29.—King Ferdinand, of Rumania, has ordered a general mobilization of his forces and is reported to have gone to the front personally to take command of his army.

The Rumanians already are reported to be making furious efforts to capture passes in the Eastern Carpathians leading into Hungary, and are declared to be fighting shoulder to shoulder with Russian troops coming from Bukovina.

While Berlin says that Rumania's attempts to pierce the passes have been futile, Vienna admits that owing to a "far-reaching" encircling movement by strong Rumanian forces" Austrian advanced detachments have been forced to withdraw.

What Greece's attitude will be as a result of Rumania's joining the Entente Allies is still problematical, but unofficial advices to London express the belief that she soon will throw in her lot with the Entente. A pro-Entente demonstration in Athens, passed a resolution saying that if the people were not heard in their demand that Greece join the Entente "we must take counsel as to what is to be done to minimize the ruin which awaits us."

Feeling Intensified.

Occupation by the Bulgarians of Kavala is declared to have intensified the feelings of the Greeks, who are said to be willing to follow former Premier Venizelos in any action he may advise. Venizelos is strongly pro-Entente.

An attempt by the Germans to approach British trenches near Pozieres, stopped by the British, was the only move made by infantry on the British lines Tuesday. There is still considerable artillery activity in this region however. Along the front held by the French bad weather halted operations.

On the eastern front from the Riga region to the Carpathians in Galicia the day passed without momentous happenings. In the Caucasus region near Lake Van the Russians have gained additional successes over the Turks.

The Serbians in the Macedonian theater are continuing their advance toward Vetrelik and also have repulsed strong Bulgarian attacks northwest of Lake Ostrovo. Bombardments are proceeding in Lake Doiran region and along the banks of the Vardar River.

Shelling Italian Positions.

The Austrians are still shelling the Italian positions in the lower Isonzo region, the upper Cordevole Valley and in the valleys of the But and Fella rivers. In the Posina Valley, on Monte Cimone and near the Avise the Austrians have been forced to give further ground. Notable among the gains of the Italians is the capture of Monte Cauriol, at an altitude of 8,000 feet.

Field Marshal von Hindenburg, who recently was given the command of all the German forces on the Russian front, has now been appointed chief of the German general staff in succession of Gen. von Falkenhayn, dismissed by the Emperor.

McHenry Bank Sues.

The McHenry Deposit Bank, which is in process of liquidation, filed suit yesterday in the Hardin Circuit Court against J. E. Nall and J. A. Nall to recover on a note of $340.00, executed May 16, 1916. The note is subject to a credit of $15.00.—Elizabethtown News.

"Some" Hog.

Franklin, Ky., Aug. 28.—A hog, five months and seventeen days old, and weighed 225 pounds, was shipped to the Louisville market from the Franklin station. The animal weighed sixty-eight pounds May 17 last and had been fed in the pen with one of the Pig Club hogs.

TUNNEL WILL GO UNDER CHANNEL

GREAT BRITAIN AND FRANCE TO BE CONNECTED BY UNDERGROUND ROAD.

WILL DRIVE BIG TUBE

First Step in Mammoth Construction Will Be Penetration of Chalk Layer.

London, Aug. 26.—Opposition to the proposed railroad tunnel under the English Channel connecting England and France has practically disappeared, and it seems certain this great project will be started at the close of the war, if not earlier.

Arthur Fell, Member of Parliament, today described the plans for the tunnel or rather tunnels, as follows:

"England and France were separated years ago by the irruption of the North sea thru the Straits of Dover, but nature, whilst dividing the two countries, provided them with an easy means of future access by depositing at the bottom of the water in the straits a thick layer of grey chalk, impervious to water, but very easily excavated by tubes and tunnels.

Mouth Behind Cliffs.

"In this deposit of chalk, which is about one hundred and fifty feet thick, and which extends from under the Cliffs of Dover right across and under the cliffs at Cape Gris Nez, in France, it is proposed to drive the channel tunnel. One mouth of the tunnel will be in the valley behind the cliffs of Dover and the other near Wisant, behind the cliffs at Cap Gris Nez.

"There will be two tunnels, each twenty feet in diameter, parallel with each other, and about forty feet apart, but connected with each other by frequent passages. These tunnels will be of a size necessary to take full size sleeping and restaurant cars of the modern great express trains.

"To facilitate the construction of the two tunnels a tube about nine feet in diameter will be first driven in the grey chalk right across and joining up the two countries. This tube will prove the ground and show any fissures or faults which may exist, and will afterwards serve as a drainage tunnel for two railway tunnels above it.

"The tube will greatly speed up the construction of the railway tunnels. It will have a light railway track, and from it chambers will be excavated in the chalk, from which it will be possible to drive the tunnels in both directions, removing the chalk excavated out by the tube. By this means instead of only driving the tunnels from the two mouths in France and England to meet in the middle, they will from these chambers be driven in both directions toward the shores, and the tunnels will by these means be completed in half the time, or about five years.

Many To Be Employed.

"There will be a hive of industry deep down in the chalk under the middle of the Straits, where the men will be working to meet the men coming from the shores.

"The trains will be run by electricity thru the tunnel, and the power stations for this will be on each side of the channel and some five miles from the coast. Possibly the railway from London to Dover will be electrified before the tunnel service begins, and then the trains would run without stop from London to Wisant, in France, where the motor would be exchanged for the locomotives which would take the train on to Paris.

"The trains would run thru the tunnels at about thirty miles an hour and at ten minutes intervals, which means at about five miles apart, and four hours each night would be reserved for changing staff in the tunnel and doing any necessary renewals. The gradients and the curves, except in the cliffs of Dover will be very slight, so the trains will run very easily and a power of 46,000 kilowatts would be more than sufficient for the trains and pumping and lighting.

No Fumes Possible.

"There will be no fumes or exhalation in the tunnel. The movement of the trains in opposite directions will keep up currents of air, and, besides, engines and pumps will be worked which will completely renew the air in the tunnels every three days.

"The trains will be specially built for the service, and will be brilliantly lighted when in the tunnel, and the opportunity will be taken when possible of serving the chief meals on the journey when passing thru the tunnel."

Should Sloan's Liniment Go Along?

Of course it should! For after a strenuous day when your muscles have been exercised to the limit an application of Sloan's Liniment will take the soreness and stiffness away and get you in fine shape for the morrow. You should also use it for a sudden attack of toothache, stiff neck, backache, stings, bites and the many accidents that are incidental to a vacation. "We would as soon leave our baggage as to go on a vacation or camp without Sloan's Liniment."

Writes one vacationist: "We use it for everything from cramps to toothache." Put a bottle in your bag, be prepared and have no regrets.

Final Question.

"Em, for goodness sake, get those kids to bed," grumbled Jenkins, who had vainly tried to settle down for a quiet five minutes.

The young Jenkinses went aloft, and there seemed some prospect of peace until Harold, the eldest, who had been allowed half an hour's grace, began butting in with his ridiculous queries.

"What on earth do you want now?" demanded the harassed parent, as he desperately flung down the paper.

"Well, dad, did Adam only have one name?"

"Of course he did. Now, look here, any more silly questions and you go to bed, too, my son."

"Yes, pa, but can't I talk a little bit more about that question?"

"Go on with it," said the parent pa. "And mind, this is the very last."

"Well, was Adam his first name or his last name?"—Buffalo Enquirer.

WOMEN DO THE WORK.

Are Engaged in All Kinds of Occupations in England.

London, Aug. 26.—"Bus" and "tram conductresses" are so common in England nowadays they attract no attention. Postwomen deliver the mails, gas and electric companies employ women to read the meters, women drive delivery vans, sell papers, run elevators, shine shoes, cut one's hair, take one's ticket and act as butlers.

In the country they have taken up farming, poultry raising and truck gardening. In fact, there seems no field hitherto given exclusively to men, except soldiering, in which women are not found working cheerfully and efficiently.

With the opening of the munition factories thousands of girls left domestic service and took their places as munition workers. In one small factory alone, inspected by an International News Service representative, 2,500 girls are working in day and night shifts, earning approximately a dollar a day, more than twice the amount paid the average domestic servant.

This factory is being enlarged and will soon have 6,000 girls on its payroll. The work is easy. Every cartridge before it is sent to the front must be weighed, gauged, inspected for flaws, placed five in a clip ready for the gun, done up in belts, 50 rounds to a belt, sealed in airtight tin boxes, which are in turn enclosed in wooden boxes, labelled, directed and shipped to France.

The girls rapidly become very expert in this work.

The Most Musical Town.

Boston? New York? Chicago?

No, none of these. The September Woman's Home Companion says:

"It is Lindsborg, Kans., a country town of only 2,000 inhabitants. Lindsborg has a big band, a symphony orchestra of 60 pieces, which plays the same class of music as the Boston Symphony and the New York Philharmonic orchestras, a male chorus, a children's chorus with several hundred members, a Musical Art Society, which specializes in operatic works; but Lindsborg's greatest glory is its Oratorio Society of nearly 600, to which whole families belong, and which gives annually a remarkably fine rendition of Handel's 'Messiah.'"

"This inspiring record of musical good deeds has begun some 35 years ago by Carl Aaron Swenson, who came to Lindsborg as pastor of the little church in the newly formed Swedish colony there. He was a young man with a vision. He wished to found a college for the youth of his people, and to give them also great music for their daily life. Both dreams came true. Doctor Swenson, aided by his devoted wife, built in Lindsborg a college which now has an enrollment of nearly 1,000; and the story of his musical organizations was briefly told in the first paragraph."

RUSSIANS ARE HAPPY IN FRENCH TRENCHES

PRESS CORRESPONDENT COMPARES CZAR'S MEN TO AMERICAN LUMBERMEN.

Paris, Aug. 26.—I have just seen the Russian soldiers in the French trenches at the front. A happier lot I have never laid eyes on than these tall, broad-shouldered, straight-limbed Muscovites. You involuntarily compare them with the crews of alert, powerful lumberjacks you meet with in the great forests of the United States.

There is something so frank, honest and childlike in these smiling good-natured giants, who have been picked from the best regiments in the czar's army. It would be utterly impossible to associate these men with any deed of violence or cruelty, and although they are now in France, where light claret or white country wine is part of the soldier's daily ration, they have voluntarily and unanimously chosen to abstain from it, because they consider themselves in honor bound to keep their promise to the "Little Father" at home, who will not taste a single drop of wine himself as long as there is a single enemy soldier on the sacred soil of his holy Russia.

As we arrived at the headquarters of the brigade we found its genial commander-in-chief, Gen. Lokhvitzky, about to put on his helmet for a tour of inspection of the front trenches. He received us charmingly and we immediately felt at home in the presence of this man, whom his soldiers, officers and men alike idolize.

"So you have come to see my boys in their front trenches," he exclaimed when he had asked what he might do for us. "Nothing could possibly please me more, and you have come at a very suitable moment, for I was just about to go there myself."

"I have made it a rule to go there every day, though never at the same time, first, because it is well to come unexpectedly, and second, because I know something of German spies, and our friends the enemy might think it to their advantage to arrange a special 'strafing' if they knew exactly when there was a chance to take a shot at me in a trench. But if you are ready we will start at once."

We did so, picking up on the way the colonel in command of that particular sector, and at top speed our limousines rushed along the dusty road, winding their way with marvelous skill among the hundreds of motor trucks coming back empty after unloading their loads of shells and cartridges at the supply depots immediately behind the front.

A little farther on we saw men preparing the soldiers' plain meals, singing all the while soft, melancholy Russian folk songs.

The support trenches were full of men with smiling faces, who jumped up and saluted as we passed on our way toward the front trenches. Here, motionless as statues, with their rifles in position to fire immediately, men were standing at short intervals, their eyes riveted on the German trenches, visible a short distance away. Their comrades were lying about sleeping, writing or talking in low voices. Overhead the shells were screaming and whistling on their way toward the German artillery, which replied only feebly.

Gen. Lokhvitzky went along, talking to his soldiers, who replied without embarrassment or stiffness. There is no machine made discipline in the Russian army and the relations between officers and men are very much like those in the French army.

"My soldiers are all thinking of the splendid victories won by their comrades over the Austrians and the hundreds of thousands of prisoners they have taken. They are asking me when I think they will be given a chance to do as well," said the general, "and they are very proud that they have been chosen from among our vast armies to take part in the great French victory we all feel is coming."

When we came back to brigade headquarters Gen. Lokhvitzky said:

"I would have been very happy were I able to ask you to empty a bottle of noble French wine on the success of our arms, but, as you know, we soldiers of the Czar have sworn not to touch wine until the war is over. I will just say, therefore, that as long as I can remember we Russians have been used to look upon the French as our friends. Now that we have been and are shedding our blood for the same sacred cause and on the same battlefields, we consider the French our brothers and France our second country. Viva la France et la Russie!"

A Real American Poet.

Widely enjoyed and beloved, the poetry of James Whitcomb Riley will probably always in our lifetime encounter a species of objection in the minds of many Americans. His poetry sings. Its force is emotional. Its sincere charm is absolute, and depends not at all on being something like something else—on the audience's recollection of Greek verse or familiarity with Japanese art, or impressionistic landscape. To the kind of reader for whom a recognizable, musical idea limits, instead of greatly liberating the communicative faculty of poetry, to the kind of reader who thinks of poetry as a species of mere tight-mouthed and cryptic prose, to the kind of reader who is worried by poets who will not give him, so to speak, any reliable library references for their inspiration—to such American readers as these James Whitcomb Riley's poetry must always seem all wrong and misguided. People have always been cutting them out of the newspapers and reciting them at ice cream socials and church benefits. They are a part of the national consciousness.—The New Republic.

Look Good—Feel Good.

No one can either feel good nor look good while suffering from constipation. Get rid of that tired, draggy, lifeless feeling by a treatment of Dr. King's New Life Pills. Buy a box today, take one or two pills to-night. In the morning that stuffed, dull feeling is gone and you feel better at once. 25c at your druggist.

Halloween at Our House.

Halloween can be made one of the pleasantest of celebrations with the least trouble.

In some of my summer leisure I make each child an easily adjustable, white toga-like arrangement. These togas have for years saved my heels at Halloween. With each toga goes a mask. I also made long, conical caps of alternate strips of black and orange felt, with black and orange cats, witches, brooms, moons and ovals pasted on the contrasting color.

We began to save all our plaster pumpkins, witches and cats that used to fast through but one occasion, and by adding now and again to our store we at last have an excellent supply. I helped the children in leisure evenings make a couple of sets of amusing Halloween place cards, as well as some little clay pumpkins and candlesticks. Their clothespin witches, dressed in tissue paper, they also seem to treasure. The fact is, children are thoroughly enamored with things they make themselves, and if mothers see that proper appreciation is given to these things, and that provision is made for their care, the feeling will last a long time. And it is a great asset.

In addition to carefully saving these decorations we also put away certain things we will need the next year, a good-sized chunk of lead with an iron melting ladle, plenty of little candles; a box of perfect walnut half-shells, and so on.

Are You Looking Old?

Old age comes quick enough without inviting it. Some look old at forty. That is because they neglect the liver and bowels. Keep your bowels regular and your liver healthy and you will not only feel younger but look younger. When troubled with constipation or biliousness take Chamberlain's Tablets. They are intended especially for these ailments and are excellent. Easy to take and most agreeable in effect. Obtainable everywhere.

Shooting Rags.

When you discard your old cotton garments you might be the cause of the death of a German soldier in the trenches in Europe. The Allies are actually using these with which to discharge their guns. This is brought out in the reports that the munitions makers of America are buying up all sorts of cotton rags to be used in the manufacture of gun cotton. One report has it that the Du Pont Company stationed men in various parts of the country to get options on large quantities of stock. The buying was so heavy as to send the prices of cotton rags skyward. It is about time for the humble "ole clothes" man, in order to boost his business, to join the ranks of the advocates of preparedness and stimulate the manufacture of gun cotton, and consequently the use of cotton rags.—Wall Street Journal.

THOUSANDS SEE CAPTIVE U-BOAT

GERMAN SUBMARINE PLACED ON EXHIBITION IN THE THAMES RIVER.

CREW DIVES OVERBOARD

Set Off Explosives And Plunge Unto Water But Mine-Layer Is Taken To Britain.

London, Aug. 26.—A curious German submarine caught just as it was about to lay mines off the East Coast, has been placed on exhibition in the Thames and viewed by hundreds of thousands of sightseers.

This is not one of the fast, big U-boats which have preyed on shipping, but is a little fellow without guns or torpedo tubes, built solely for mine laying.

Some weeks ago a British destroyer was out exercising off the coast. When she sighted this submarine, the German boat was in difficulties. It was misty weather. The destroyer drew close and the English seamen noticed that all the crew of the U-boat seemed to be on deck.

The British commander called out for the Germans to surrender. The latter hauled down their flag and put their hands above their heads. At a word from their commander, they jumped into the water and swam for dear life away from the ship.

Takes Much Water.

Internal explosions followed and at the last and heaviest, a cascade of hammocks and other debris shot out of the open conning tower to a height of forty feet. That was this vent for the explosive forces probably saved the ship, but as it was she took a good deal of water.

Altho the submarine had laid no mines, two had been released by the force of the explosions and were foul of the bottom of the vessel. Contact with the "horns," which jutted out all around the mines, would have set off enough high explosive to wreck a battleship.

A young British officer now performed a highly difficult and dangerous task. He went down in a diving suit and made the mines safe by detaching the detonators, afterward securing the mines in a safe position.

This submarine is the U-5, and carried twelve mines. She was built in five sections in Germany, brought to Zeebrugge, on the Belgian coast, in freight cars, and there put together. She displaces 195 tons floating and 210 submerged. She submerged by blowing out certain tanks and by the use of hydroplanes. Her length is 110 feet.

Mines Cost $800 Each.

Amidship is the conning tower, with periscope and wireless mast. Forward of the conning tower are six chutes or air locks in which the mines are stored, two to a chute. The mines were discharged electrically from the conning tower.

These mines weigh 1,200 pounds loaded and cost about $800 each. When one of their horns is jarred by a ship's hull, a glass vial in the interior is broken, letting loose a liquid which energizes a battery, and the mine explodes with terrific violence.

The craft is propelled by Diesel heavy oil engines an electric accumulators charged before leaving port. She crawls along at a speed of only six knots.

Her officers and crew numbered sixteen persons in all and they were very uncomfortably crowded when their boat was under water.

Why Endure Summer Colds?

It isn't necessary to have a stuffed head, running nose. To cough your head off as it were. All you need do is to use Dr. Bell's Pine-Tar-Honey. The soothing and healing balsams open the clogged air passages and in a short time you get relief and start on the road to recovery. Your nose stops running, you cough less and you know you are getting better. Get a bottle, use as directed. Keep what is left as a cough and cold insurance.

When Matches Were Rare.

Less than a century ago the "instantaneous light box" containing seven dozen Congreve matches, which were ignited by drawing them between a fold of sandpaper, sold for a shilling a box in England, according to an exchange. They did not have a wide sale because they failed to light, half of the time, and when they did ignite the stench of the chemicals were such that the airing of the room was necessary. Lucifer matches were not sold generally until near the middle of the last century. At that time each match was a stick whittled by hand, and the cost of manufacture was such that only the well-to-do availed themselves of the convenience. As a result of the invention of a machine for making matches any one of several American factories can make twice as many matches in a day as could be made in a year in England in the forties. The invention of automatic boxmakers served also to reduce the price of matches to a point at which they could be used generally.

The supplantation of hand labor by machinery popularized matches. There will be a continuous increase in the cost of the materials of which heads are made as long as the war continues, but the slight increase in cost of the product will not be sufficient to deter even the very poor outside of China from using matches with accustomed freedom.—New York Tribune.

Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy.

This is a remedy that every family should be provided with. Colic and diarrhoea often come on suddenly and it is of the greatest importance that they be treated promptly. Consider the suffering that must be endured until a physician arrives or medicine can be obtained. Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy has a reputation second to none for the quick relief which it affords. Obtainable everywhere.

The work of rebuilding the tippie at the Central Coal & Iron Company's mine is being pushed as rapidly as possible. It is estimated that it will take at least thirty days to complete the work. A pair of improved hoisting engines is also being installed. Except for the fact that the coal scales in the tippie were destroyed and new scales have to be installed and adjusted, the work of rebuilding would not require as much time. Only one of the large steel girders was seriously injured by the heat, and the contractors happened to have a duplicate of this in stock, which effected a great saving of time.—Central City Argus.

HOW MRS. BEAN MET THE CRISIS

Carried Safely Through Change of Life by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Nashville, Tenn.—"When I was going through the Change of Life I had a tumor as large as a child's head. The doctor said it was three years coming and gave me medicine for it until I was called away from the city for some time. Of course I could not go to him then, so my sister-in-law told me that she thought Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound would cure it. It helped both the Change of Life and the tumor and when I got home I did not need the doctor. I took the Pinkham remedies until the tumor was gone, the doctor said, and I have not felt it since. I tell every one how I was cured. If this letter will help others you are welcome to use it."

GERMAN PRISONERS IN CAMP ARE SATISFIED

CORRESPONDENT VISITS FRENCH MILITARY PRISON—INMATES ARE ORDERLY LOT.

London, Aug. 26.—At Leigh, in the County of Lancashire, I unexpectedly came upon an internment camp for German prisoners and, showing my papers, I had no difficulty in getting permission to visit it.

Leigh, although called a camp, has no likeness whatever to the tented field. The "camp," I found, is really a weaving mill, which had been finished but not yet used when the war broke out and which was then taken over by the government. A few slight alterations have made it into a very comfortable, airy barracks for 2,000 prisoners of war.

That was the number of men which I found there, and as they all were taken in the early stages of the war, they were almost all men of splendid physique. A very well nourished crowd they looked, and those whom I asked what they thought of the food they received all declared it excellent and plentiful, though of course, rather monotonous.

They declared that they got more meat than they ever had been used to before, and certainly more than they got in the German army, where the ration is about three-eighths of a pound per man.

The prisoners came from all parts of Germany, and there were many of the famous Brandenburgers among them. The average age of these men was perhaps a little over 25 years and there were not more than a dozen men above 40 in the camp.

The commander of the camp, Col. Blagrove, told me discipline is very easily maintained and that as a matter of fact the prisoners themselves looked after that.

"From the very first," he said, "I have encouraged the sense of responsibility and authority in their own noncommissioned officers, who are really a splendid lot of men."

"I have allowed the feldwebels (senior noncommissioned officers) certain small privileges and they more than make up for this by keeping things running smoothly. Not a single case of bullying has been reported to me from the day the camp was opened."

"The prisoners have their own educational committees, and many of the men have taken up the study of English. Others, less ambitious, work at wood carving or play cricket, a game of which they knew little or nothing before they came here. The men have also organized a fine band, and we have two theaters, where performances are given three times a week."

Nearly all the men were in the habit of receiving remittances from home, generally in small weekly sums, but many of them have now written to their families that they get everything they want and that it is absolutely unnecessary to send them anything. Food parcels have become a thing of the past entirely, which is of course quite natural, considering the scarcity and high prices in Germany.

About 100 of the prisoners have taken up gardening and have been given small plots of ground, on which some exceptionally fine vegetables are raised.

A One-Man Baseball Team.

Many a ball team can boast of only one first-class player, but for the first time in history here is a ball team consisting of just one man. He is pitcher, short-stop, outfielder—everything. No chance for petty rivalry, no chance to be benched for a scrub substitute, no erratic pitcher to catch for—he is the whole team. This remarkable man is Rupert Mills, and he is the Newark team of the Federal League. He is practically all that is left of the league, and the way he comes to star in lonely glory sounds like a musical-comedy plot. A writer in the New York World tells what he learned about the situation from the lips of the ball team himself. He tells us of seeking the player in the wilds of the ball park: "When I entered the field and asked a youngster where Rupert Mills was he answered: "Oh, up on the roof of the grand stand." And then he added with great earnestness: "Yes, he is, no kiddin'—after a baseball."

And so he was, sure enough. Presently he came sliding down one of the pillars that hold up the roof of the grand stand, leapt over the railing into the field, and went on with his solitary game of baseball.

The seedy gentleman in the "Bab Ballads" who was at once the entire crew of the Nancy Brig had nothing on Rupert Mills. For Mills is a whole baseball team in himself, from the catcher to the outermost outfielder; and this without having followed the Gilbertian precedent mentioned, by eating the other members of the team.

After Mills had hit a ball to the centerfield fence, he walked over and condescended to explain why he alone was in the forlorn Newark Federal League Baseball Park, when all the other players of the defunct club had scattered to the four winds.

Mr. Mills stands in the neighborhood of six feet four or five inches in height, has a tremendous pair of shoulders, and a blond, pleasant, likable face. He is a graduate of the University of Notre Dame, Ind., and played end on the football team of that college for three years.

"Last June," he relates, "when I was graduated from Notre Dame, a scout of the Federal League signed me up with this club for two years at a salary of $3,000 a year. But, as you will remember, last winter the Federal League blew. That left me without an actual job in baseball; but I still had my iron-bound contract, with a year to run. I determined to have what was due me."

"I was not bought by either of the other big leagues, but I expected that my club would look out for me. Finally, I was offered a position with Toronto, of the International League, at a salary of something under $1,200 a year. In addition to this, I was offered $500 if I would go there and cancel my contract with the Newark Feds. What was wanted by Toronto, I believe, was a third baseman. I was not a third baseman. I am a first baseman. If I had gone with that team, and had failed to make good, I should have been let go. I would have been in $500 and out $2,500!"

"Mr. Powers, the owner of the Newark club, could not get my viewpoint at all."

The account breaks into Mills' recital with an imagined vision of the interview which took place between them. There was Mills, determined he would live up to his contract, and the equally determined Powers, who was certain no one would ever find him paying a man for work he had not done. The World imagines what happened then:

"The Newark club," said Pat Powers, its once owner, with lofty eloquence, "died with the demise of the parent body, the Federal League. And—ahem!—an arm does not survive the death of the frame to which it belonged."

"That," said Rupert Mills in reply, "concerns me not at all. I have a signed contract which states that I am to be paid $3,000 for my services during the season of 1916. That the Federal League is dead I deplore—but I did not kill it. And I don't intend to suffer by its decease. It is enough to be behaved, without being cheated out of the insurance-money."

"You'll get nothing you don't earn," snapt Powers.

"Very well," said Mills. "I'll earn it. State your pleasure, and let me get about doing it."

Whereupon Mr. Powers stated his "pleasure," and in baseball annals it was absolutely without precedent.

Mills himself recounts the rest of the incident:

"He suggested this: I was to come here to this park every morning at 10 o'clock and practise until 12. I was to be back here at 2 and remain until 6. In this way I was to put in the full day of a ball-player."

"I agreed, and here I am. I'm here before ten o'clock and I leave after six; I'm giving him a little overtime and not charging for it. I never miss a day. I'm here rainy days and Sundays as well—and I will be until we come to terms or the season ends."

"When I came here at the beginning of the season I was given two baseballs. These are now rapped out, and I have put in a requisition for more. Sometimes I have company, and sometimes I don't. At times a few 'grass-eaters' wander in here, and at such times I manage to get a good work-out. At other times when I hit the ball I have to chase it myself. But I'm doing the whole thing conscientiously, and if I were given a chance to play ball tomorrow, I should be in perfect trim."

WAR TO LAST TWO YEARS.

Military Experts Think Struggle Will Continue Into 1918.

London, Aug. 25.—The Times military expert, in an optimistic review of the military situation, points out his reasons for believing that the war is not near its end and discusses the arming of the Allied armies for 1917 and 1918.

"Our superiority in the field," says the writer, "is not yet adequate, since it does not give us that annihilating preponderance necessary for victory. Next spring, having completed our own supplies, we can set to work to arm Russia with a will. We can fit out the armies for 1917 and 1918, which must, in the end, crush the most frantic efforts of the Central Powers, and, as we can last so long, or longer if necessary, we can be satisfied with nothing but the complete satisfaction of our demands."

"The Allies will end the war as such formidable military powers and so superabundantly supplied with the veterans and materials that, failing some gross negligence on the part of our Governments during the peace parleys, Germany will never be able to face a war again in our time. "Many soldiers firmly believe the politicians will sell out in the end. But this opinion is certainly wrong, for the force of public opinion behind the war is now so strong that the public would think nothing of taking all the members of the Government and hanging them in a row if they showed any inclination to throw away at the peace parleys the fruits of our stupendous war efforts.

If Birds of a Feather.

A small boy astride of a donkey was taking some supplies to an army camp in Texas not long ago, and got there just as a detachment of soldiers, preceded by a band, was marching past.

The lad dismounted and held the bridle of the donkey tightly in his hand.

"Why are you holding on to your brother so hard?" asked a group of soldiers who were standing near and wanted to tease the country boy.

"I'm afraid he might enlist," said the lad, without batting an eyelash.

REPUBLICAN TICKET.

For President,
CHARLES EVANS HUGHES.
For Vice President,
CHARLES WARREN FAIRBANKS.
For Congress,
JOHN P. HASWELL, JR.
For County Attorney,
A. D. KIRK.

HAVE THEY LOWERED IT?

"The high cost of living is a serious problem in every American home. The Republican party in its platform attempts to escape from responsibility for present conditions by denying that they are due to a protective tariff. We take issue with them on this subject and charge that excessive prices result in large measure from the high tariff laws enacted by the Republican party."—From the Democratic National platform adopted at Baltimore in June, 1912.

The cost of living at that time was considered high, but under the present Democratic administration it has gone still higher and the problem of the "American home" is greater than ever before. They promised to reduce this cost but they have failed to make good their promise. Your opportunity of protesting will present itself in November.

Cantrill is sure "frank" about it.

President Wilson has decided to try Lapsing on that big Mexican bill.

No, Johnny hasn't lost any dear relatives recently. The absence of the cheerful smile is due to the fact that school begins Monday.

The last strike is about to be called on Wilson. It's about time that he retire to the players bench and let someone else bat awhile.

In an attempt at suicide a Dawson Springs man placed himself in front of an approaching train, his head on one rail and feet on the other. While unsuccessful in his efforts he had the consolation of being bruised pretty badly.

John P. Haswell, Jr., candidate for Congress in the Fourth District, is said to be making a vigorous campaign in the upper part of the District. Mr. Haswell is a good orator but will make no speeches until after the address of Mr. Hughes September 5th. He expects to spend considerable time in Ohio county later in the campaign.

There will be no campaign speeches made in Kentucky by Republicans until after the opening gun is fired by Hughes September 5. After the candidate has formally opened his campaign in this State, however, the machine guns will let go. Ammunition was never more plentiful for the attack while the past record, the platform of principles and the splendid candidate will do for the defense. Ohio county wants Morrow for at least two speeches and her desires no doubt will be met by the bureau and Mr. Morrow.

The Ohio county boys pig contest held at Hartford yesterday was the best ever held here and County Agent Browder deserves much credit for the interest; they haven't got it in the bones, and they go up to it like a skittish horse to a brass band. You couldn't get a decent Protectionist measure out of a Democratic Congress sectionally organized any more than you could get a revival sermon out of a disorderly house. You can't do it.

It was necessary to threaten Gov. Stanley with an injunction suit before he would appoint a Republican election commissioner, one of the duties that he swore to perform when he took the oath of office as Governor of Kentucky. Not until the day before the suit was to be filed was the appointment made. The delay is said to be partly due to the fact that the Governor was seeking a whisky Republican for the job. Democrats who believe in fair play are disgusted, as well as Republicans, over the actions of Stanley in the mess. The Stanley-Cantrill regime is fast losing its strength and of this fact Mr. Stanley will be made personally acquainted when he makes the race for the Senate.

Congressman J. Campbell Cantrill and other Democratic Congressmen have been sending out campaign literature without paying any postage whatever. By use of what is called the frank Congressmen are permitted to send out official business letters, etc., without postage, but it is strictly a violation of the law to misuse this privilege. The letter, which the people are paying postage on, is an ordinary Democratic campaign letter signed by Mr. Cantrill. We have received at this office a speech in defense of Wilson's policies under the frank of a Mississippi congressman that should have carried the usual stamp as it was sent out for campaign purposes. The abuse of this privilege will cost the Democratic party many a vote.

The big railroad strike, involving 40,000 men, will begin Monday, it is announced, unless an agreement is reached before that date. Absolutely no progress toward an agreement has been made during the days of wrangling. President Wilson and the railroad employees demand an eight hour day while the employers contend that such a concession is impracticable. The president hinted to the railroad officials that the Commerce Commission would permit a raise of freight rates if the demands were complied with. If that is what it takes to get the eight hour day we are against it. Our freight rates are high enough. There are very few men in Ohio county drawing as much money for their labor as the average railroad conductor and it is not right to impose a larger freight rate upon them in order to shorten the hours of the man who works fewer hours for more money. The strike is called for Monday. All we can do is to watch and wait and hope, altho we have seen watchful waiting policies result in complete failure.

Mr. Hughes and The Tariff.

Thus far in his Western tour Mr. Hughes has not given the Tariff a very large place in his speeches. But what he has said is worth reading. For example, at Detroit, August 7:

The Republican party stands not for a prosperity produced by war, but a prosperity produced by a sound American principle.

This is a proposition well worth enlarging upon. We hope Mr. Hughes will see his way clear to expand it. He might add, as the New York Evening Sun does, this thought: No income tax plunder to back up a business wrecking Tariff!

In his Chicago speech, of August 8, Mr. Hughes used his hammer more effectively in nailing the foolish presumption that the party of Free-Trade is veering toward Protection. The fact is, as Mr. Hughes contends, that is a case of cowardice rather than a case of conversion to sound and sane policy. At Chicago Mr. Hughes said:

You must have regard for the economic independence of this country. We have learned a few things of late. Those who were talking Tariff for revenue only are now whispering very softly about a Tariff commission. A little while ago we heard in the Democratic platform of 1912 that it was contrary to the Constitution of the United States to have a Protective Tariff. That was in effect—of course not in words, but the words mean simply this—they say, in effect now, that the European war has changed the Constitution of the United States.

They have been preaching a doctrine for generations which, looking at what they call the economic revolution produced by the great conflict abroad, they hardly utter today. But do you think they are converted? Don't you trust them a little minute with Protecting American industry; they haven't got it in the bones, and they go up to it like a skittish horse to a brass band. You couldn't get a decent Protectionist measure out of a Democratic Congress sectionally organized any more than you could get a revival sermon out of a disorderly house. You can't do it.

There never was, and there never will be, a symmetrical and intelligent Tariff law, much less a Protective Tariff law, enacted by a Free-Trade Congress. The only way to get a sensible, practical, effective Tariff for Protection is to stop electing Free-Traders to Congress.—American Economist.

COUNTY REPUBLICAN COMMITTEE MEETS

HEADS OF OHIO COUNTY EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE WITH L. H. CONDIT ORGANIZE.

E. G. Barrass and W. S. Tinsley, Chairman and Secretary, respectively, of the Ohio County Republican Executive Committee, having heretofore agreed upon and selected Mr. L. H. Condit, of Point Pleasant as Chairman of the Ohio County Campaign Committee, met with Mr. Condit on yesterday and completed the organization of the said Campaign Committee for coming campaign. The personnel of the committee is as follows:

L. H. Condit, Chairman; M. L. Heavrin, Secretary; Dr. A. B. Riley, and Otto C. Martin, Assistants; John C. Mason, Fordsville; Dr. Willard Lake, Simmons; Jas. D. Taylor, Beaver Dam, Route 3, and Dan Mitchell, Hartford, Route 6.

It would be very difficult to select a more thorough and energetic committee than the foregoing, all of whom are good men and amply qualified for their positions which are of trust and confidence.

Headquarters will be opened at once and thorough and systematic organization completed at an early date. We feel that Ohio County Republicans are to be congratulated in securing the above campaign committee.

WOOD HEADS JOINT BOARD TO TEST HAMMOND DEVICE

Washington, Aug. 29.—Maj. Gen. Leonard Wood, commanding the army's Eastern department, has been appointed head of a joint army and navy board, to pass judgment upon the radio-controlled torpedo, provision for the purchase of which from the inventor, John Hays Hammond, Jr., is made in the Fortifications Bill, recently passed by Congress. If the board reports favorably and President Wilson approves, the War Department is authorized to expend $750,000 for the purchase of the exclusive right to manufacture the device.

Members of Gen. Wood's committee, are Capt. John A. Hoogewerf, Commander David W. Todd and Lieut. Joseph V. Ogan, of the navy, and Lieut. Col. George O. Squier, Signal Corps, and Capt. Fulton Q. C. Gardner, coast artillery.

The Hammond invention, is designed to give an additional weapon for coast defense. Army officers witnessed experiments before recommending the purchase of the appliance, during which a small motor boat was driven in any direction at a distance of several miles from shore, responding instantly to the will of a radio operator in the shore station. It is planned to use it to attack hostile battleships, the operator remaining either at a shore station or directing torpedoes from an aeroplane equipped with a radio apparatus.

18 VILLA BANDITS SHOT FOLLOWING COURT-MARTIAL

Chihuahua City, Aug. 28.—In a fight with a band of Villa followers at Corralitos, close to the Durango line, the forces of Gen. Domingo Arrieta took eighteen prisoners, who were immediately tried by a drum-head court-martial and shot, according to official reports received today by Gen. Trevino. The body of the notorious bandit, Ferniza, found among the rebels slain, was taken into the town of Matamoras, near Tereon, and hung up in the plaza as an object lesson to Villa sympathizers.

None of the prisoners taken in this fight or those taken in the action at Satevo a few days ago, was able to say whether or not Villa was alive.

Col. Campos, of the Arrieta Brigade, was dangerously wounded. It was at Corralitos that Gen. Ignacio Ramos was killed by Villa's men a short time ago.

WAR GAME SHOWED NEED OF FLYERS, SAYS BENSON

Washington, Aug. 28.—Commenting today on the big naval war game played last week, Rear Admiral Benson, chief of operations, said the vital lesson demonstrated was the need of aircraft for scouting purposes and also the urgent necessity of adding battle and scout cruisers to the fleet.

Although the aeroplane ship North Carolina participated in the game as a scout, none of her hydro-aeroplanes was regarded as safe for use at sea. Admiral Benson said the problem of finding the best type of pontoon for the machines, minimizing the danger on landing, was being given concentrated attention by navy experts and that results were to be expected soon.

The department is still without information as to the part played in the game by Rear Admiral Helm's submarine flotilla. Admiral Benson declared, however, that when the department's plans for establishing submarine bases along both coasts, with a fleet of submarines stationed at each, such a result as the landing of hostile troops, the mission which the Red fleet under Rear Admiral Mayo theoretically accomplished, would be impossible.

The progressive schedule of war games for the navy contemplates a great joint operation with the army in studying out the problem of meeting an invader. It was impossible this year to attempt any such maneuver because the army was busy on the Mexican border.

OVERNIGHT CITIES WILL SOON BE SPRINGING UP

Whitesburg, Ky., Aug. 29.—The Elkhorn Mining Corporation and allied interests of New York, through the millionaire capitalist, Jere H. Wheelright, and other officials of the company, are preparing, and in some instances starting the work of development along the Left Fork of Beaver Creek north of here on the Knott county border. "Overnight" cities will be springing up within the course of a few days—millions of dollars to be expended in the work—destined to far eclipse anything yet undertaken in the Eastern Kentucky coal fields—even surpassing the phenomenal development of the Consolidation Coal Company around Jenkins and McRoberts in the Elkhorn field of this (Letcher) county.

10,000 MOVIE "SUPERS" STRIKE FOR HIGHER WAGES

New York, Aug. 28.—Ten thousand New York moving picture "supers" have banded together and will strike if necessary to obtain wage increases and better working conditions, Louis Stern, under whose direction the organization was formed, announced. The union has the sanction of the American Federation of Labor, it was said.

Stern said the entrance of agents into the moving picture "super" business had brought wage decreases. An agent, he said, receives a certain amount a day for each man he supplies to the film company, and then pays the "super" only a fraction of this sum.

A proposed scale of wages demand $7.50 a day as a maximum wage.

German Mule Objects.

Columbus, Ind., Aug. 29.—Thomas Damerot, who is buying mules in Bartholomew county for a St. Louis, Mo., firm for use in the English army, bought one from a German farmer near here to-day. Jesse Hayden, 20, was engaged to ride the mule to this city, and, although the animal was broken to ride, as soon as the youth mounted he was thrown to the ground and kicked by the mule, his right leg being broken.

DOLLAR AND A HALF WHEAT

1.50 for September wheat in the Chicago Market! A dollar and a half for cash wheat before the rattle of the thresher has died away in the winter wheat belt.

By September 1st wheat generally touches its lowest point. The winter wheat is then on the market and spring wheat is pressing hard for sale.

A dollar and a half for September wheat makes us think. In 1914 with a billion bushel crop, wheat topped the market in February at $1.67. With a crop in 1916 one-third less and with no reserves, wheat selling for a dollar and a half, makes us think there is something good in a 1917 crop of wheat to our Farmers.

Let's get busy and make a bumper crop in 1917 which will mean bumper dollars. In order to reap the best results on a wheat crop in this country farmers should use the best Fertilizer and that is DAYBREAK, which we will offer to you for cash at prices that can not be duplicated. See us and place your orders now, so that we can get the goods to you in due time.

of a button the exact amount is registered.

The management of the Ohio
County Fair company considers itself fortunate in securing the services of the Owensboro Band for the fair September 21 to 23. This band is well known in Ohio county, it having played for the old fairs of by-gone days and it will prove a big drawing card for the big show this year.

Mr. Hooker Williams left Wednesday morning for Frankfort, where he has been appointed a guard at the State prison. He resigned as marshal of Hartford to go to the capital. Mr. Williams stated before leaving that he would not accept the place until he had made investigations. His family will remain here for the present.

Pastor B. W. Napier will fill his appointment at the Methodist church here next Sunday morning and night.
Subject Sunday morning, "Paul's Idea of Pastoral Authority." Sunday night, "The Satisfying Power of a Great Aspiration." There are only two more appointments before Conference. Everybody invited, and especially let every member try to be present.

At a meeting of the City Council Monday night W. H. Burton was elected chief of police of Hartford to fill out the unexpired term of Hooker Williams, resigned. Burton has accepted and already has plans under way for cleaning up the town and making improvements. He has the reputation of taking great interest in any undertaking with which he is connected and he will make the city a good official.

The same company that made the Ohio County fairs famous will be in full charge of the fair this year. The Owensboro Band, one of the best in the State will make music. Good show rings, fine floral hall exhibits, thrilling races and amusements of all kinds. Make your arrangements now to be there. Nothing will be left undone to make September 21-22-23 days long to be remembered.
Tell your friends that you will meet them at the prettiest fair grounds in the State.

Miss Mariam Holbrook entertained

CONSTABLE CHARGED

WITH KILLING LEE

FATHER OF DEAD MAN SWEARS TO WARRANT FOR ARREST OF C. L. WEDDING.

Some weeks ago Constable C. W.
Wedding, of Dundee, served a warrant of arrest upon young Ferdie
Lee, of near Dundee. Wedding was reading the warrant when Lee ran away, going toward Rough river. The Constable proceeded to fire his pistol two or three times hoping to stop the fleeing defendant, but he continued toward the river bank and as it later developed, plunged in, tho no one knew it at the time.

This happened on Thursday evening and as Mr. Lee failed to show up on the next day fears were entertained that something serious had happened. Search was made in the river by various parties and the body of Lee floated up upon the mill dam on Saturday morning near day break, perhaps just before.

Coroner A. B. Riley was called to view the remains and after he and Drs. Duff and Godsey had inspected the body and after witnesses had been examined a coroner's verdict of accidental drowning was rendered.

Mr. S. A. Lee, father of the deceased, came to town a few days ago and made affidavit, charging Constable Wedding with murdering Lee and a warrant was issued. Wedding, upon being notified of the warrant came to Hartford yesterday and placed himself in the hands of the the Sheriff. He went before County Judge Wilson, who fixed his bond at $250.00, which he promptly executed for his appearance before the next grand jury for investigation.

HUGHES TO BE MOVIE STAR FOR CAMPAIGN PURPOSES

New York, August 27.—Both Republicans and Democrats are preparing to make extensive use of the "movies" in the presidential battle.
The Republicans have been working for a month on their plan for the movies. Everett Colby, one of the Progressive members of the Republican campaign committee, closed a contract today, it was said, for a photoplay that will depict different phases and issues in the campaign and bring in the big features.

Charles E. Hughes will play the leading role in the play, with Col.
Theodore Roosevelt and William R.
Willecox, national chairman, both cast for star parts, according to the announced plan.

Where are you going, my pretty maid?

To the Ohio County Fair, kind sir,"
she said,
"To hear the music and see the show,

go."

Arrested in Men's Clothes.

Maysville, Ky., Aug. 28.—A story of a wife who would not leave her husband when he was on his uppers is the story of a young couple arrested here when it was discovered that the woman was wearing men's clothing, consisting of overalls, a shirt and cap.

The young man was employed in Cincinnati, but on account of a strike lost his job. The man told his wife he would travel the country over in looking for another job. She said, "I will go with you." So they started for Huntington, W. Va., on a freight train, but were put off here. The Chamber of Commerce provided funds for their transportation to Huntington.

TRUNK CONTAINING ASHES OF HUSBAND DISAPPEARS

Cincinnati, O., Aug. 26.—The disappearance of a trunk from her room in the Bremen hotel, containing the ashes of her husband, John Rankin, forty-seven years old, who died June 25, was reported to the police by Mrs. Bertha Rankin. She told detectives she was informed the police had ordered the trunk to be removed. No such order was issued through the police department, she was told.

DAILY MUSICAL TREAT AT STATE FAIR BY NATIELLO'S ROYAL HUSSAR BAND

Marianne Conway and Signor Ernesto Natiello.

THIRTY-FIVE high-class musicians, including the famous bandmaster Signor Ernesto Natiello and noted soloists and instrumentalists, constitute the Natiello's Royal Hussar Band that will be the big feature at the Kentucky State Fair September 11-16. The management was very fortunate in securing this band, for there is none better in the country. All the men will be attired in white Hussar uniforms that give the band a distinction all its own.

Both the band and the soloists carry out Signor Natiello's long-known motto—"Give the people the music they want." This gives satisfaction all around and pleases everyone. The programs, which are changed daily, include both popular and classic selections.

The soloist with the band is Marianne Conway, one of the foremost concert sopranos in the United States. She has sung with the Boston Fallettes, Theodore Roehmildt's Orchestra, Rich. Max Hornig's Orchestra and others of similar standing. Her voice is said to be very fine and has a range that enables her to sing all classes of pieces.

A feature that is attracting much attention wherever the Natiello Band appears is the Una-Fon, a new instrument. It is played like a piano and has a rich tone that can be heard at great distance. This band is the first to include the Una-Fon in its equipment.

Leader of Ability.

Ernesto Natiello, leader of the celebrated band of thirty-five pieces bearing his name, which will be a feature of the Kentucky State Fair, was born in Italy in 1878. Six years later his father, Signor Antonio Natiello, came to America and was appointed bandmaster on the United States Ship Brooklyn. He made Ernesto cornet soloist in a band he had organized in Philadelphia.

In 1889 Ernesto returned to Europe to finish his musical studies. Attaining the highest degree of perfection on the cornet, young Natiello came back to the United States as soloist with the famous Band of Milan. After an American tour, he returned to Naples and enlisted in the Italian army, serving as cornetist in his regiment for six months. Then he again came to America and joined a prominent band, shortly after which he recruited a musical organization of his own.

NEW SADDLE HORSE STARS

To Prance for Prizes in Banner Rings at Coming Kentucky State Fair.

WHEN the pavilion gates swing wide for the entrants in the four greatest horse events listed for the fourteenth annual Kentucky State Fair, to be held September 11-16, it is surmised that not one of the proud high-steppers in the Championship Five-Gaited Saddle Horse ring, formerly known as the Commissioner of Agriculture's Five-Gaited Saddle Horse Stake, held Friday night of the fair—the Kentucky Championship Roadster Stakes to be shown Tuesday night of the fair—the Kentucky Championship Fine Harness Stakes to be shown Wednesday night of the fair and the new feature, a Championship Three-Gaited Saddle Horse stake, which will be shown Saturday afternoon of the fair, will be recognized by horsemen or a horse-loving public as ever having performed on the tanbark oval of the great Kentucky show ring. While the list of nominators includes many of the former "stand-bys" of the fair it is well known to those posted in horse history that a phenomenal number of the most noted horses of the past decade owned by them have departed from Kentucky borders, among the list being R. E. Moreland's beautiful Cascade, which has been sold to a Pennsylvania horseman; Powhatan Stock Farm's Richieu King, Kalarama Farm's brilliant prize winner, Rectina, who has also been sold to Pennsylvania; P. W. Ray's Sunflower, sold into Pennsylvania; Mrs. R. T. Lowndes' famous Mary Yandell Fox and Beautiful Kentucky's Choice, and Bob Moreland's Nicoll Plate, which has been sold into Missouri.

The above named have all figured in the celebrated Kentucky State Fair and other noted rings. In the fine harness and three-gaited class departed notables of horse-flesh are Gossip, champion three-gaited mare; Clara Bell, champion fine harness gelding; Ethel Mac and Gladys Conter, champion road mares, and Ebony King, champion road mare.

Increased Purses.

Instead of offering the former prize awards in a flat sum in connection with the four features mentioned above, the State Fair management has announced the more tempting plan of listing all the entry moneys in a lump sum and adding to it for the Champion Five-Gaited Saddle Horse stake $1,000 in cash and a handsome silver trophy; for both the Kentucky Championship Roadster stake and the Kentucky Championship Fine Harness Stake, $500 additional to the entry moneys, and in the new three-gaited saddle horse stake the bonus added to the entry money will be $200. As this stake is new to State Fair history, the entrants in same will, of necessity, be new to horsemen. In the fine harness stake the prospects are likewise for new blood. In the roadster stakes it is anticipated that the greatest lot of entries ever shown in a like event will be listed for the contest. Those who have purchased nominations above are:

GERMANY TO HOLD CONQUERED DOMAIN

TEUTON WILL KEEP CAPTURED TERRITORY PERMANENTLY IF SUCCESSFUL.

Berlin, Aug. 24 (via London, Aug. 25).—A proclamation containing views on the peace conditions which might be imposed by Germany is published today by "The Independent Committee for a German Peace," an organization formed some time ago by those considered to be the extreme war advocates in Germany.

The proclamation asserts that, despite the fact that the Germans and their allies are holding three kingdoms in their hands, the Entente still talks of the destruction of the German empire and Entente statesmen continue to indulge in a flood of abuse and lies about Germany, while themselves violating every principle of international law, forcing neutrals to enter the war against their better judgment and endeavoring to force into submission, through hunger, millions whom their swords could not vanquish.

"Our enemies will not succeed," continues the proclamation. "One thing they have accomplished is to force upon us the realization that England is our special and most dangerous enemy. England causes our enemies to stick together. England leads them. Upon England they depend and will depend more after the war. On the wreckage of our empire England hopes to unfurl the banner of Anglo-Saxon world domination."

Claim Russian Territory.

The document asserts that Russian territory from the Baltic to Volhynia must in the future be included in the German empire, to serve as a bulwark against the Russian tendency to annihilate Germany. France's revenge ideas must constantly be kept in mind, so that in the West also changes would be necessary.

Belgium in the future, adds the proclamation, either will be a German or an English bulwark, so "real guarantees" here also are needed. The document then cites the expression of Dr. Peter Spahn, leader of the Catholic Center party in the Reichstag, that "Belgium must lie in German hands militarily, economically and politically." The proclamation concludes with the assertion:

"England's plan threatens us with political and economical helotry. It aims at our life as a people and as a state. It aims at our culture and institutions. Energy must be applied regardless of consequences to force peace upon this enemy. Let it not come true that, as England says, we will win all the battles, but England will win the war. With von Hindenburg, let us say it is not only a question of sticking it out, but of winning."

CAMPAIGN COMMENTS.

(By J. H. Thomas.)

Ridicule of the President's note writing extends beyond the seas.

London Punch refers to him as "all write."

Just to keep the party record straight the Wilson administration is preparing a bond issue.

The solidest asset of the Republican party in this campaign is its history of fifty years of administration of the government, during which the progress and development of the country was without a parallel in the history of the world.

How do the already overburdened taxpayers like the payment out of the federal treasury of $23.96 cents per day to Congressman Cantrill to manage the Democratic campaign in Kentucky, and $7.66 cents per day to State Fire Marshal, Tom Pannel to play secretary to Cantrill's Committee?

The program of the present Democratic State organization is said to be, James for re-election, Cantrill for Governor, Stanley to succeed Beckham and the brewers and distillers to finance the deal.

Unable to answer Mr. Hughes' destructive criticism of the administration the national Democratic press bureau has inspired a country wide campaign of cheap ridicule, the effect of which is to make the Democratic press ridiculous.

Mr. Hughes' merciless exposure of the stupid blunders of the Wilson administration is a concrete example of "pitiless publicity."

It is reassuring to Kentucky Republicans to see the Democrats put Ollie James up on all their big speaking occasions. It furnishes them a sort of yard stick to measure all the other Democratic speakers by.

That Kenyon crack in his last year's slate is causing Governor Stanley a great deal of worry.

To illustrate how the Democratic party has fallen from grace since 1912 it is in order to mention some things that do not appear in its platform of 1916.

Among these are:
No mention of a single term for President.

No declaration for free tolls through the Panama Canal.

No denunciation of the principles of a protective tariff.

No promise to reduce the high cost of living.

No promise to reduce needless office that are "sapping the substance of the people," nor is there any declaration that its "promises are made to be kept when in office, as well as to be relied upon during the campaign."

FARM DEPARTMENT

Mow The Orchard This Season.

If the hot days of August find you with an orchard that has not been cultivated during the summer and with the weeds so large that it cannot be plowed so as to cover up the weeds without plowing extra deep, the right thing to do is not to plow at all, but to run your mowing machine through the orchard and mow the weeds. Plowing the orchard after dry, hot weather sets in disturbs many of the feeding roots and cuts them off at a time when there is not enough moisture in the soil to permit their reestablishing themselves. This causes the trees to suffer worse from the drought than if the orchard hadn't been plowed. The mowing of the weeds stops them from robbing the soil of its moisture and their shading the ground stops evaporation from the earth.

There are a lot of folks who after dry weather commences remember that somebody said good, clean, level cultivation is the thing needed, and get at it entirely too late in the season for it to be of any benefit. Deep summer plowing with a turning plow in the pinch of a dry spell does injury and not good.

Store Cowpeas in Snuff.

When storing cowpeas in the hull, put down a layer of cowpeas a foot deep and then dust over them a good sprinkling of snuff, such as is bought by snuff users. Then put another layer of cowpeas and sprinkle again with snuff and so on. Try this and when you hull your cowpeas the next summer at planting time note the absence of the weevil.

LIMBERNECK IN POULTRY YARDS A GREAT MENACE

(By Myra Kelsey Cox, Experienced Poultrywoman.)

Ptomaine poisoning among fowls, caused by the eating of putrid flesh is commonly known as "limberneck." Because of its similarity to other diseases, it is frequently confounded therewith. Prevention, in the form of careful disposal of dead things, is more sure than cure. Limberneck, exhibits fowls insufficiently supplied with animal food.

Most poultry diseases are infections. Rouse, cholera and all their kindred run through flocks and pens with fatal surety. The ordinary poultry raiser, too busy to investigate their pathology, wastes no time searching for germs. He is too much occupied in combating their activity. Occasionally among such malignant visitations he may note a mysterious ailment. It comes unheralded, strikes down the healthiest in a night, may count one victim or a score and may subside as quickly. To his unacquainted eye, it looks like a bona fide imitation of cholera quite as fatal with less laggard a course. It is very likely to be an example of "lim-berneck," a term less elegant than truly descriptive of the disease. Here, if it be of comfort to the poultry-keeper's heart, is a disease paradoxical in practice. It may appear repeatedly in one season, yet it neither disseminates germs nor necessitates the use of germicides.

"Limberneck," properly speaking, is a species of ptomaine poisoning in fowls. It seems to be a menace more common to the poultry-yard of today than of the past. Chickens, turkeys, guineas, or ducks may succumb, with the last two more susceptible. This ratio is attributed to the more developed carnivorous needs of the latter fowls. Appetite dictates a craving, and in the endeavor to satisfy it, they fall victims. When the required supply of insect food fails, the fowls fall upon the substitute next at hand, whence all the mischief.

"Limberneck" is distinctly a warm weather disease. It never appears in cold weather. Sometimes it claims a single victim; again it may devastate a poultry yard, sparing neither chicken, duck nor guinea. This eccentricity makes it the more peculiar, unless it is understood.

Identifying the Disease.

The symptoms are unmistakable. The practical observer, noting them, will avoid the mistake of treating for apoplexy, cholera, or dysentery. The victim may be found in one or two stages. Usually the collapse is sudden. The healthy hen of last night lies prostrate this morning in a corner of the chicken house, with ruffled feathers, closed eyes and outstretched spineless neck (whence the name of the disease). In a few hours, or perhaps a day or two, she dies, never having moved. The ravenous gawky ducks of the noontime meal, at night creep or flop homeward, as if hurt across the back. It has happened that a Muscovy duck and her brood of fourteen well at daybreak, were dead at night of this trouble. Not every attack is fatal. If the poisoning is mild, the fowl affected appears to be suffering with an injured back. It staggers weakly, eyes half closed and tail depressed. Naturally it evinces no interest in food, for it has almost lost the ability to swallow. Diarrhoea is present, but the comb and wattles retain the scarlet of health. Such a case may recover. Young ducks have survived after such an attack, to succumb to a second. The half shut eye is symptoms of the lightest attack. A general paralysis seizes the fatally stricken and it lies in a coma till death.

No germ may be indicted for this condition. The fowl affected have fed on putrid flesh or on insects eating thereof, which include the larvae of flies, known as maggots. Ptomaine poisoning ensues, with the same utter prostration manifest in the feathered unfortunates that characterizes a human being so stricken. Hence the prevalence of this disease during the warm months. Fowls, particularly weak little ones, dying in obscure places, furnish the material for infection. Especially on farms where poultry runs at large is it difficult at all times to find these carcasses which may be the result of accident. The warmer the air the quicker the decay. Energetic fowls in their search for food discover them to their own disaster. Sometimes the first cause may be due to the poultry raiser's own carelessness. After the disease appears, victims lying in remote or hidden spots provide new infection, setting up an endless chain whose operation can only be checked by vigorous, thorough search on the part of the owner.

Manifestations of Its Work.

Occasionally there is great havoc from disease on duck farms. It is usually limberneck, to which they are especially prone. Ducks confined in large numbers on limited space crave the animal food demanded by their nature. If their ration lacks this important feature of their diet, they will supply it at the first opportunity. Voracity and a tendency to scavenging prove their undoing. Unless every dead duck is found before its body becomes a temptation to the survivors, the disease is rampant.

A successful turkey raiser of some years ago used to relate an experience bearing on this subject. Her turkeys, over a hundred in number, and about 2½ months old, came home one day at nightfall, staggering and choking. That night many died. Others followed in the next succeeding days. Being a person of energy not to be fazed by a disagreeable duty, she performed a post-mortem to discover the mysterious ailment that had robbed her of her season's work. In the turkey crops she found numbers of long, ugly black beetles. Pursuing her investigation further, she walked to the lower field, the goal of their daily routine. Here on the edge of a marsh lay the poorly buried carcass of a calf, swarming with the black beetles. The farmhand's carelessness had played havoc with her flock, and she had learned a valuable, but dearly bought lesson.

A raiser of guineas opened the door of their house one dry, hot August morning. No eager, fluttering, hungry young creatures welcomed her. Thirty of the hundred with one of the fostermothers lay prostrate on the floor or roosts, head dangling, necks limp, wings spread. She knew the trouble. An investigation began. In the extreme end of the orchard a dead goose buried in the dusty soil a week before, had been disinterred by stray dogs. In their craving for the carnivorous, the guineas had feasted and paid the penalty of their appetite.

Castor Oil And Turpentine in Treatment.

Sometimes fowls recover. Nineteenth die. Only one of the guineas survived, reaching a stunted maturity. There is little satisfaction in treating fowls suffering with limberneck. The object is to flush the digestive tract to rid it of any poisonous matter yet unassimilated. If the fowl is not in total collapse, the best practical treatment, out of a number of things tried, seems to be a dose of one-half teaspoonful castor oil, followed with a few drops of turpentine on dampened meal. These doses must be given forcibly, as the throat muscles seem paralyzed. The most effectual treatment is the ax, with a safe disposal of the body. The first transgression of fowls eating tainted flesh is unusually dictated by a lack in their diet, the same instinct that causes hens to eat eggs. I am inclined to think that later it becomes an obsession with them, much as the feather-eating habit of which we sometimes hear. Poultry raisers read in every case of limberneck among their flocks the admonition to supply plentifully animal food in some form, such as curd sour milk, beef scrap, etc. In the days of flocks, fowls secured sufficient for themselves; the modern habit of concentration of large numbers within small limits imposes the necessity of catering scrupulously to the fundamental needs of poultry. Neglect will certainly claim its toll.

The Ounce of Prevention.

Many fowls on small premises, either penned or at liberty, are endangered. A large range, allowing fowls to supply themselves naturally in their roving, acts as a preventive. In any event, it behooves the poultry keeper, whether the poultry yard be up to date or merely adjunctive to the farm, to dispose safely of all dead fowls, small or large. This applies to all decomposing matter. A dead baby chick can start the ball a-rolling. Burning is better than burying. Sanitation and the health of the fowls demand this care. If precaution be strictly observed, limberneck, at least, will not vex the poultry keeper's soul.

The Physical Side of Dreams.

It is possible to demonstrate that the interpretation of physical sensations is in fact the primary business of dreams. It has even been found possible to make dreams to order, by subjecting sleepers to conditions affecting their sense organs in one way or another. On being awakened and asked to tell of their dreams, sleepers on whom these experiments were tried have again and again narrated dreams indicating unmistakably that specific physical sensations were their starting point, and that the dreams represent attempts to account for these sensations. Thus, the application of a hot-water bottle to the soles of a sleeper's foot produced a realistic dream of walking on hot lava. Another sleeper, a woman, subjected to the hot-water bottle experiment, dreamed that she had been changed into a bear, and was being taught to dance by being forced to stand on red-hot plates. Tickle one sleeper's face with a feather occasioned a horrible dream of torture, in which a mask of pitch was applied to the face and then torn roughly off, taking with it the skin of the lips, nose and cheeks. A bottle of eau de cologne, held close to a sleeper's nose, caused the sleeper to dream, first that he was in a perfumer's shop, and afterward that he had many exciting adventures.

In all these instances, it is obvious, there is an exaggeration of the sensation or sensations actually experienced. And there is an interpretation in symbolic as well as more or less fantastic terms. The sleeper's dream does not represent the hot-water bottle causing the heat, but conjures up something else that dramatically takes the place of the hot-water bottle. Always this element of symbolism bulks large in dreams, hindering ready recognition of the physical sensations giving rise to the dream.—H. Addington Bruce in the October Mother's Magazine.

HUSBAND RESCUED DESPAIRING WIFE

After Four Years of Discouraging Conditions, Mrs. Bullock Gave Up in Despair. Husband Came to Rescue.

Cañon, Ky.—In an interesting letter from this place, Mrs. Bettie Bullock writes as follows: "I suffered for four years, with womanly troubles, and during this time, I could only sit up for a little while, and could not walk anywhere at all. At times, I would have severe pains in my left side.

The doctor was called in, and his treatment relieved me for a while, but I was soon confined to my bed again. After that, nothing seemed to do me any good.

I had gotten so weak I could not stand, and I gave up in despair.

At last, my husband got me a bottle of Cardui, the woman's tonic, and I commenced taking it. From the very first dose, I could tell it was helping me. I can now walk two miles without tiring me, and am doing all my work."

If you are all run down from womanly troubles, don't give up in despair. Try Cardui, the woman's tonic. It has helped more than a million women, in its 50 years of continuous success, and should surely help you, too. Your druggist has sold Cardui for years. He knows what it will do. Ask him. He will recommend it. Begin taking Cardui today.

KENTUCKY TOBACCO GROWERS WROUGHT UP

UNDER SECRETARY LANSING TO TAKE ACTION TOWARD LIFT- ING EMBARGO.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 29.—R. H. Cooper, of Hopkinsville, chairman, and John J. Conroy, of Clarksville, secretary of the Tobacco Growers' Conference, aided by Representatives Barkley and Kitchel, Kentucky, and Byrnes, Tennessee, in resolutions presented to Secretary Lansing this afternoon, protested against the recent embargo act of Great Britain, declared tobacco is not a contraband of war, urged Secretary Lansing use his best efforts to secure from Great Britain an adherence of her agreement of November 15, 1915, and failing in that asked that "such steps be taken as will impose proper penalties on the trade and credit relations with such foreign countries as unwarrantably seek to interfere with the shipment to neutral countries of our non-contraband product."

The resolutions cite the fact that hundreds of thousands of families in Kentucky, Tennessee, Virginia and Maryland, growers of dark tobacco, practically all of which is exported, depend upon this product for their very existence.

Senator James, of Kentucky, and Representative Hull, of Tennessee, were appointed a committee to discuss with Secretary Lansing the question of amending the revenue bill so as to place restrictions upon certain imports from Great Britain, should the latter insist upon putting the proposed embargo into effect.

Notice.

The Farmers Co-operative Tobacco Growers Association is called to meet at the court house in Hartford, Saturday, September 2, at 1 o'clock a. m., for the purpose of assuring the amount of tobacco pledged in this county. Every local in the county is requested to report.

FROZEN DEAD ANIMALS IN SIBERIA SEEM ALIVE

London, Aug. 26.—The markets of Irkutsk, in Siberia, are an interesting sight, for the products offered for sale are in most cases frozen solid. Fish are piled up in stacks like so much cordwood, and meat likewise. All kinds of fowl are similarly frozen and piled up.

Some animals brought into the market whole are propped up on their legs and have the appearance of being alive, and as one goes through the markets one seems to be surrounded by living pigs, sheep, oxen and fowls standing up.

Miracle Seed Wheat.

Bearded, recleaned. I am offering my crop of this excellent wheat at $1.75 per bushel while the supply lasts. E. G. AUSTIN, 914 Prentiss, Ky.

JACKSON APPOINTED AS COMMISSIONER

Frankfort, Ky., Aug. 30.—When the Republicans filed a suit in the Franklin Circuit Court early this morning to compel Gov. Stanley to appoint a Republican Election Commissioner from the list of five submitted by the Republican Committee, the appointment of T. C. Jackson, of Lebanon, as the Republican member of the State Board of Election Commissioners had been made and entered on the executive journal. The appointment was made August 29 by Governor Stanley, who communicated by phone and letter with Jackson on that date, notifying him of his appointment.

Chattanooga Strikers Return.

Chattanooga, Tenn., Aug. 27.—The strike of conductors and motor-men which has tied up street car traffic here for two days ended Friday, the strikers agreeing to go back to work tomorrow while negotiations are resumed with the company, under an agreement to submit all ultimate differences to arbitration.

The "Six-Six School Plan."

In most states the school system is organized so that eight years is devoted to elementary and four years to high-school education. But objection is now being urged to this plan. It is believed that it would be better to curtail the elementary and extend the high-school period. Many men hold that in six years almost, if not quite, as much can be accomplished in most schools in eight years. Often in the eighth—and sometimes in the seventh—grade, pupils do not make much headway. They seem to go over the ground which they covered in the earlier grades. Most pupils are just entering the teens when they reach the seventh grade. This is the crucial period in the child's life, and there ought to be some modification of school methods and discipline at this time. Seventh and eighth-grade pupils should be treated differently in most respects from first-grade pupils. Moreover, the higher grade pupils would do more earnest work and conduct themselves better if they could be in a school with older boys and girls. They need inspiration. If they are kept with the babies they will not do their best ordinarily in either study or conduct. They need at this time to look forward and upward, rather than backward and downward. They need also to have departmental teaching, by which is meant that one teacher should not teach every subject, but only the subject in which she is specially strong.—M. V. O'Shea in the October Mother's Magazine.

LATEST WAR NEWS

Monday.

Italy.—Germany and Italy at last are at war. Italy has ended the anomalous situation that has existed for months by declaring that from to-day she considers herself the enemy of her former ally.

Greece.—Heavy fighting continues between the Entente and Teutonic Allies in the Macedonian theater from the region of Lake Ochrida eastward to Kavala on the Aegean, but with results beclouded by diverging statements of Berlin and Paris. Berlin reports that Bulgarian forces operating to the west of Lake Ochrida have captured Malik, in Albania, and that along the Struma King Ferdinand's men are approaching the mouth of the river. Paris admits the Bulgars have taken all except one of the forts at Kavala, on the Aegean, but says the newly acquired positions have come under the fire of British warships.

Western Front.—Despite bad weather there has been considerable fighting and a renewal of mine warfare along the British front in France. London reports the capture of 200 yards of a German trench Saturday night.

Tuesday.

Rumania.—Rumania yesterday declared war on Austria-Hungary, a challenge which was promptly answered by a similar declaration against the Balkan State by Berlin. The first clash has already occurred on the Hungarian frontier and the object of the attacks seems to be to take Kronstadt and Hermannstadt, two important towns in Transylvania.

The Allies are very much gratified at the entrance of Rumania, and the undercurrent of feeling seems to be on both sides that Greece will enter the lists against the Central Powers soon.

In The Balkans.—Berlin records the capture of heights south of Zbrozko by the Bulgarians, and the repulse of Serbian counter attacks on Mount Seganska. Paris reports the Serbs have made considerable progress near Vetrenika and have repulsed with heavy losses Bulgarians on the road from Banica to Ostrovo.

France And Belgium.—The French report further progress east of Delville wood and near the Monquette farm, in the Somme region, while London reports the shelling of British positions by Germans, especially between Pozieres and the Thiepval wood and reciprocal bombardments at other points.

Eastern Front.—From the Riga to the Carpathian passes there have been engagements between Russians and Austro-German forces.

Wednesday.

Rumania.—A general mobilization of his forces has been ordered by King Ferdinand, of Rumania, and he is reported to have gone to the front personally to take command of his army. The Rumanians already are reported to be making furious efforts to capture passes in the Eastern Carpathians leading into Hungary. While Berlin says Rumania's attempts to pierce the passes have been futile, Vienna admits that owing to a "far-reaching" encircling movement by strong Rumanian forces Austrian advanced detachments have been forced to withdraw.

Greece.—What Greece's attitude will be as a result of Rumania's joining the Entente Allies is still problematical, but unofficial advices to London express the belief that she will soon throw in her lot with the Entente.

Germany.—Field Marshal von Hindenburg, who recently was given the command of all the German forces on the Russian front, has been appointed Chief of the German General Staff in succession of Gen. von Falkenhayn, dismissed by the Emperor.

Thursday.

Rumania.—Rumania's invasion of Austro-Hungarian territory continues in the mountainous region from Petrozensy, on the railroad northeast of Orsovo, to the Gyergyo Mountains, eighty miles north of Kronstadt. Though Bulgaria has not entered into hostilities against Rumania, a news agency dispatch says Rumania has decided to send an ultimatum to Bulgaria demanding the evacuation of Serbia. A report from Constantinople is that Turkey has declared war on Rumania.

Violent fighting continues between the Entente Allies and the Austro-Germans and Bulgarians in the Macedonian theater.

Drama, in Northeast Greece, has been seized by the Bulgarians after a fight with the Greek troops.
